

Report of Opinion Editor

Tyler Prochazka, 2023

I am delighted to report on the strides we have made in the Opinion Section of Basic Income News during the 2022-2023 period.

BIEN has sought to become a global canvas for our discussion on basic income, extending our outreach. We have seen many more translated articles. As a result, our content is now more accessible than ever, transcending language barriers. Personally, I have worked on Chinese articles to amplify voices from the Asia Pacific region.

This summer I have been working to build bridges with interns from China who shared our vision. Together, we are expanding our catalogue of translated materials, and propelling research in China.

The content this year touched on diverse themes. We traversed continents and topics: perspectives from the Middle East, discussions on UBI and climate change, examinations of bank failures, and analyses of UBI versus Negative Income Tax.
